

attention all international grad students!

From workshops to language labs, CommLab has all the language solutions for international graduate students.

Free Individualized and Personal Consultations: Work with a specialist in Linguistics and TESOL on all topics related to communication. Specific assistance for non-native speakers of English on issues related to pronunciation and speaking, accent reduction, academic and career preparation, conversational English, and more.

Workshops pertinent to International Grad Student needs: Workshops cover topics for understanding English and avoiding misunderstandings; we prepare students for all settings, including the classroom, job interviews, and casual and formal conversations. Workshops include Tips for Better Writing, Tips for Better Speaking, Oral Presentations, and more.

Phonology (American Pronunciation) Lab: The CommLab will be offering a Phonology lab for International Grad students who would like to have their pronunciation and speaking skills assessed by lab experts. Once evaluated, students will be permitted to use lab software with the assistance of pronunciation experts to enhance their listening, speaking, and presentation skills. See the CommLab website for additional information.

English in the Evening: Starting in mid October, informal English conversation groups will gather at the CommLab (CULC 447) every week to enjoy light refreshments while practicing English. This is a free event and open to all students. See CommLab website for additional details.

CommLab: The CommLab also offers communicative services for all Georgia Tech Students. Make an appointment here with the CommLab!

Interested students should reach out to the CommLab at: commlab@gatech.edu to make an appointment during the upcoming semester, starting on January 19, 2021.
